Production history

Sunny Bancroft and Gordon Smith run Collum Collum, an Aboriginal owned cattle station in northern New South Wales. Although neither of them is more than a "bush mechanic", they decide to take one morning to replace the engine on Smith's Holden Kingswood. The morning turns into a long day, especially for Stevie, Smith's three-year-old stepson, and for Sam, a friend that has come along to help. Together they face a problem that cuts across cultures, familiar with all of us who have to struggle with the frustration of modern technology, showing a characteristic sense of the event as an affirmation of continuing relationships, not merely a means of getting a job done.
