

J. J. Abrams + Steven Spielberg = Super 8

It is an upcoming science fiction film written and directed by filmmaker J. J. Abrams and produced by Abrams, Steven Spielberg and Bryan Burk

May 15, 2010 - 11:57

Abrams and Spielberg collaborated in a storytelling committee to come up with the story for the film. It was initially reported to be either a sequel, or a prequel to the 2008 film Cloverfield.

However, Abrams quickly responded to those reports by stating, "You have to check [out the trailer], but it has nothing whatsoever to do with Cloverfield, despite your expert reporting."

Plot

In 1979, the U.S. Air Force closed a section of Area 51.

All materials were to be transported to a secure facility in Ohio.

A train carrying important cargo from this Area 51 is destroyed, causing its contents to be unleashed upon the world.
`div.overlay { width:1040px; height:504px; } #imgplay { margin:46px 0px 0px 190px; } #player { background:no-repeat url('/videos/news/2010/may/super.jpg') top center; } #splash, #player, #player embed, #player object { width:560px; height:256px; }`

More Information at www.super8-movie.com. Image and Video Courtesy of Paramount Pictures. Video Encoding: 3Dup.com