IBM server i5 and iSeries Supported Upgrades

The upgrades supported within, to, and from IBM® server i5 and iSeries™ servers are represented with the publication of this IBM Redpaper. This Redpaper is routinely updated to reflect new or withdrawn upgrades. The upgrade paths presented in this edition are those as of 31 August 2004.

All currently marketed IBM server i5 and iSeries servers can be upgraded within the model offering. Supported upgrades involve one of the following procedures:

- ▶ Model upgrades within 520, 550, 570, 800, 810, 825, 870, and 890 models consist of a server-to-server or a processor-to-processor upgrade, and an edition-to-edition upgrade as appropriate.
- ▶ Model upgrades into the 520, 550, and 570 from models with an edition or interactive feature consist of a processor-to-server upgrade and either an edition-to-edition or an interactive-to-edition upgrade.
- ▶ Model upgrades into the 520, 550, and 570 from models without an edition or interactive feature consist of a processor-to-edition upgrade and the server feature is a straight add.
- ▶ Model upgrades into the 810, 825, 870, and 890 from models with an edition or interactive feature consist of a processor-to-processor upgrade and an interactive-to-edition upgrade.
- ▶ Model upgrades into the 810, 825, 870, and 890 from models without an edition or interactive feature consist of a processor-to-processor upgrade and the package feature is a straight add.

The following table shows an overview of the supported upgrades between and within IBM @server i5 and iSeries models.

For supported upgrades to OS/400 release levels, refer to the IBM @server iSeries System Handbook, GA19-5486, or the IBM @server iSeries and AS/400e System Builder, SG24-2155.

Legend for the upgrade tables

The “B” and “M” values in the upgrade tables indicate the upgrade content to be expected:

- ▶ B indicates a Miscellaneous Equipment Specification (MES) installation consisting of a box of parts (a parts order).
- ▶ M indicates a MES installation only consisting of a new manufactured CEC unit, also known as a Manufactured MES or a roll in/roll out.
