

Mphasis Included as a 'Contender' in Midsize Agile Software Development Service Providers' Evaluation Report

-The report analyzed 13 midsize Agile development service providers "that matter most"

New York, NY, June 13 2019

Mphasis (BSE: 526299; NSE: MPHASIS), an Information Technology solutions provider specializing in cloud and cognitive services, today announced that it has been included as a 'contender' in 'The Forrester Wave™: Midsize Agile Software Development Service Providers, Q2 2019' report by Forrester Research, Inc.

According to the report, Mphasis 'helps clients in catch-up Agile transformations', referencing offerings such as agile coaching, knowledge transfer and its own Agile maturity model to assess clients' readiness. The evaluation also acknowledges how Mphasis deploys its own framework for automated testing, combining its own intellectual property with open source tools, as well as Agile methods to transform core banking for two clients, proving its Agile and financial services credentials.

Forrester states that application development and delivery (AD&D) industry leaders should consider Mphasis if they are seeking "external help to implement Agile transformation while cost-effectively extending their internal team's development capacity".

"Being named a contender in Forrester's report supports Mphasis' strong dedication to provide Agile innovation for AD&D architects," said Dinesh Venugopal, President – Mphasis Direct and Digital. "We believe this acknowledgment underscores our commitment in executing the best Agile practices such as Mphasis' Agile framework to empower our valued partners and clients in creating the software needed to differentiate products, improve their customers' experience, and digitize operations.

In an extensive evaluation, Forrester researched, analyzed, and scored 13 of the 'most significant' midsize Agile development service providers based on 22 criteria, such as current offering, strategy, and market presence. Key criteria in the current offering category include solutions ability to co-innovate differentiating software, to transfer knowledge of Agile techniques, and to implement modern development tools and platforms. The research evaluates how each provider measures up and helps application development and delivery AD&D professionals select the right services for their customer's needs.
