Get the feel for local cuisine

Whether you're looking for a fine dining experience, a quick meal to-go, or perhaps an ice cream on a hot summer day, the restaurants along the byway have your cravings covered. Many of these eateries offer farm-to-table and locally sourced food.

Resting, relaxing and staying on the byway

Rest up after your long day of exploration. You can find an array of hotels just a short drive from the byway.

For information on local lodging and restaurants, go to visitnj.org. As you look for lodging and restaurants, keep in mind that most of the byway is in the Skylands Region, but some of the byway is in the Delaware River Region.

Historic, cultural and scenic places to discover

Biking, jogging, walking, painting, photographing, horseback riding, fishing and birdwatching are just some of the family-friendly recreations you can take part in while on the byway. This area is rich with historical sites and architectural glories, as well as cultural experiences, like annual festivals.
