LACE MAKING has been, for centuries, woman's most fascinating handicraft. We find that it was in the sixteenth century that the rare old laces were first imitated by means of Crocheting. The method at first was crude, and it was fully a century later that we find exquisite reproductions of Filet, Venise, etc., etc. The modern revival of the Art of Crocheting has met with such universal favor that we find women the world over interested in the fascinating work.

Experience has taught us that the Crocheter today prefers copying directly from the pattern to following printed directions, and with this point in view this book has been compiled, showing in such a manner charming patterns, both new and revived.
