

Figure 1. Distribution of the species across the United Kingdom. The map shows the administrative districts of the country, with each district shaded to indicate the presence or absence of the species. The distribution is concentrated in the central and southern parts of the country, with some scattered occurrences in the north and west.