 - » The broadcast reportedly included a number of parallels with the October 7 attack, including the use of white pickup trucks, the disabling of Israeli communications, attacks on targets including kibbutzim and IDF bases, including the Re'im base, and IDF soldiers being kidnapped.

- » Hamas's leader in Gaza, Yahya Sinwar, reportedly said during the broadcast that the attack was "an inseparable part of what we are preparing," and that preparations included weapons production and intelligence gathering.
- On December 4, Israel's Channel 12 reported that an intelligence officer in the IDF's Gaza Division prepared a slideshow in July 2022 which laid out Hamas plans for a massive attack on Israel. The report also included details about the IDF initial response to the attack in the night before and early morning of October 7.
 - » The July 2022 presentation, which reportedly was titled "The Mass Invasion Plan of Hamas," reportedly included a diagram of roughly 20 Hamas squadrons invading Israel by breaching the border fence and a memo, which noted, "this [prospective] invasion constitutes the gravest threat that IDF forces are facing in the defense [of Israel]."
 - » The report stated that IDF Military Intelligence held a discussion about the possibility of such an attack, with one officer reportedly saying, "we cannot say how [Yahya] Sinwar will act, and therefore commanders in the field should take the necessary precautions."

 - » The report also stated that an individual stationed at a IDF base near Gaza sent an email the night of October 6 to higher-ups indicating an attack was imminent due to "certain signs," an assessment reportedly shared by Shin Bet.
 - » At around 3:30am the morning of October 7, IDF Chief of Staff Herzi Halevi reportedly met with the head of IDF operations and the Southern Command chief and asked for more information and double-checking, and also ordered that the Israeli Air Force be alerted to the reports.
- The New York Times reported on December 4 that during Hamas's October 7 attack, a rocket that the group likely fired struck Israel's Sdot Micha military base in central Israel, at which nuclear-capable missiles reportedly are stationed, according to experts.

 - » While conducting operations in Jabaliya, IDF soldiers located rockets and other weapons, and eliminated Hamas operatives, including members of Hamas's elite Nukhba unit. The IDF Navy also struck dozens of targets along the Gazan coast.
 - » The IDF said that reservists in the 551st Brigade, commandos from the elite Shayetet 13 unit, and Shin Bet members jointly conducted a raid on Hamas general security headquarters in Jabaliya, locating weapons, military equipment, and intelligence.
 - » The Israeli Air Force struck Hamas targets across Gaza, including rocket launchers, weapons depot, and other sites.
 - » During a firefight, troops from the IDF's 7th Armored Brigade conducted a drone strike on three Hamas operatives, and troops from another brigade killed two Hamas operatives who attempted to fire a rocket-propelled grenade at them.
 - » In a separate incident, the IDF killed two Hamas operatives who ambushed troops from a tunnel entrance and opened fire, and the IDF also conducted a drone strike on three Hamas operatives nearby.
 - » Palestinian communications company PalTel said on December 4, "we regret to announce that all telecom services in Gaza Strip have been lost due to the cut off of main fiber routes from the Israeli side," and "Gaza is ... blacked out again."
 - » According to reports from December 4, unnamed Israeli officials believe that at least 15,000 Palestinians have been killed in Gaza during the war and estimate that more than 5,000 of the deaths are Hamas members.
 - AFP cited an anonymous Israeli official as saying, "I'm not saying it's not bad that we have a ratio of two to one," and it is a "core strategy" of Hamas to use human shields.
 - The official also said, "hopefully, [the ratio] will be much lower" as the war progresses and that "in the south [of Gaza], because we have basically doubled the population, operations are much more precise."
- The IDF struck terrorist targets in Lebanon after terrorists there launched attacks against Israel over the last 24 hours.
 - » On December 5, Israeli aircraft struck multiple Hezbollah sites in Lebanon, including observation posts, weapons depots, and other military sites used by the terror group's operatives, after terrorists in the country repeatedly launched rockets at Israel, including the Israeli border town of Zarit.

Gaza Strip,” adding, “at the same time, the IDF has begun to work in the south of the Gaza Strip. The fate of the terrorists in the Hamas battalions there will be the same as those in the north and worse.”

- On December 4, IDF Spokesman Rear Adm. Daniel Hagari said during a press conference that “the deployment of the forces that carry out regular operational activities [on the border of] the Gaza Strip did not change before October 7,” contradicting reports that two Commando Brigade companies were deployed to the West Bank two days before the Hamas attack.
 - » Hagari also said, “we will investigate in depth the decision on the reserve forces, which is a General Staff decision that is made regularly according to a situational assessment,” referring to forces that bolster various areas in line with IDF General Staff assessments.
 - » He said further that “every weekend, we position the reserve forces [in different areas], depending on the threats,” and “we will investigate this when we have the operational possibility.”
- The Wall Street Journal reported on December 4, citing unnamed U.S. officials, that Israel is planning to use a system of large pumps to flood Hamas’s tunnel network in Gaza with seawater to destroy them and force the group’s members to leave the tunnels.
 - » To do this, Israel would reportedly use seawater pumps capable of moving thousands of cubic meters of water per hour that it assembled in mid-November about one mile north of the Al-Shati refugee camp in Gaza.
 - » U.S. officials reportedly said that they are unsure whether Israel will execute the plan, and that Israel has not decided whether it will do so. Some U.S. officials are reportedly concerned about the plan, while other officials stated that the United States supports destroying the tunnels and that there was no opposition to the plan.
 - » An unnamed source familiar with the plan said to The Wall Street Journal, “we are not sure how successful pumping will be since nobody knows the details of the tunnels and the ground around them,” and “it’s impossible to know if that will be effective because we don’t know how seawater will drain in tunnels no one has been in before.”
